To the record, then, let us go. As the slavery question is the paramount issue in this canvass, let us first taka up the record of Mr. Bell in reference to it, before proceeding to other matters. John Bell On Abolition Petitions. Up to the23d Congress, Mr. Bell had been the firm friend and supporter of Gen eral Jackson. He represented the district in which General Jackson lived in Tennessee, and the General knew him well. Up to this time he had voted uniformly with his party against the agitation of the slavery question in Congress through the presentation of Abolition petitions. But after abandoning General Jackson, and contorting with the Abolitionists, Federalists, and disappointed Democrats, in order to reach the Speakers chair, all of which will be more fully explained hereafter, we find him abandoning, by degrees, his opposition to the Abolitionists, and at last voting with them, and receiving their plaudits. During the 24 th Congress, the Abolitionists and Federalists of New England first conceived the idea of annoying Congress by the presentation of large batches of Abolition petitions, praying for the abolition of slavery in the States, and in the Dstrict of Columbia. Mr. John Q.Adams, of Massachusetts, and Mr Slade, of Vermont, were their chosen mouth-pieces. These gentlemen would present these petitions, and then deliver long harangues upon them. To stop this agitation and wase of the public...
