Excerpt: .to show that the potential local and enviromnental implications of transfers will be minimal. The bureau recently issued blanket approvals for short-terrn transfers of water within two distinct CVP service areas--the Friant division and the westem San Joaquin Valleybut no such approval exists for transfers between regions or outside the CVP. Very few potential participants have experience with negotiations for long-term water transfers, and they need time to understand the act and leam how to take advantage of its provisions. The uncertain implications of regulations regarding endangered species and water quality in the delta may also have contributed to the lack of transfers in the first five years of the program? The necessary learning process may be prolonged by confusion about the interpretation of certain portions of the transfer provision. For example, the Bureau of 20. The proposals are available on the bureau s...
